TWCO Technical Watches.

Introducing and proudly announcing: the Salvage Diver !

It was only end of 2012 that TWCO Technical Watches could introduce the first model of their Sea Rescue Diver range the 'Orange', several versions followed for completing this comprehensive line of divers.

After Sea Rescue a Salvage operation will automatically follow, two of a kind and they just belong together in a maritime search and rescue environment.

And now it's time for SALVAGE!

Understated excellence is the name of the game for TWCO divers and the Salvage Diver is no exception to the rule!

Same family, same breed but yet so different: the Salvage Diver design pays tribute to a classic diver and, at the same time, combines it with a stylish internal bezel and a glass 'see-through' case back.

The TWCO Salvage Diver, a lasting design with a very pure TWCO aesthetic!

The Salvage Diver is a classic divers watch made from surgical 316L Stainless Steel. Sapphire crystal, double anti-reflective coating on the inside, high quality mechanical movement and overall finish to a high standard. Obviously water-resistant to 300m deep (30ATM), equipped with a very solid bi-directional 'count-down' internal bezel.

The Salvage Diver is equipped with two crowns (the @2H is for setting the bezel) has a glass 'see-through' case back and comes in a brushed finish with some distinguishing high polished edges. In short, a professional stylish watch for both the professional and the aficionado!

"We are very pleased to see that the Sea Rescue Diver range was received so well in the market. The development & introduction of this Salvage Diver was only logical and a welcome addition to the current Sea Rescue diver range" Says Robbert Suurland, owner.
